HOURGLASS '69

For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven:
a time to be born, and a time to die;
a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what is planted;
a time to kill, and a time to heal;
a time to break down, and a time to build up;
a time to weep, and a time to laugh;
a time to mourn, and a time to dance;
a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together;
a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
a time to seek, and a time to lose;
a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
a time to rend, and a time to sew;
a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
a time to love, and a time to hate;
a time for war, and a time for peace.

Ecclesiastes 3

FACULTY

To the Class of 1969:

The School Committee joins with me in saluting one of the truly fine classes in Wilmington's long history of graduating classes.

Your performance in the classroom, on the athletic fields, and in the community at large was notable for its dedication, its sincerity, and its graciousness.

You have achieved social and economic goals in the past four years that were virtually unknown to the classes prior to 1965.

We extend our best wishes for happiness and success in the years ahead.

Mr. Harold Shea, Superintendent of Schools

School Committee

Seated—Miss Imbimbo, Mrs. Hooper, Mr. Fay, Mr. Lanni. Standing—Mr. Pierce, Assistant Superintendent of Schools; Mr. Brooks, Mr Shea, Superintendent of Schools; Mr. McNamara.

Mr. Bernard McMahon, Principal

1969 will be recorded as the year of dissent on college and high school campuses. If one looks at dissent as a difference of opinion or a disagreement, nothing is wrong and no harm is done.

However, if dissent is implemented with violence, personal assault and the destruction of property, no useful purpose is served. The perpetraters of such violence will fail to accomplish their goals and ultimately assure their self-destruction. Further, they promote hypocrisy and duplicity by their basic selfishness and the denial of the rights, privileges, opinions and voice of others.

Today, more than ever in the history of our nation and the world, we need good, sound, able leaders. Do your best to develop leadership traits in your chosen field. The least you should do is carry out your individual responsibilities. The worst you can do is be a social drop-out. The choice is yours!

Congratulations and best wishes to the graduating class of 1969.

One of the first milestones in life has been achieved. There are many rungs in the ladder of success and of life, some of which will be more difficult to climb than others.

There are many among you to which success will come easy. Others will have to exert every ounce of effort and still find that they have fallen short of the goal by a small margin. Success is based on effort and accomplishment. When a person seriously has given his all to that which he undertakes, he is successful in his own right.

Life is a real challenge, spiritually, morally, socially, and professionally. Life can be worth living to the individual that has the desire to live a good life. What a person will put into life is exactly what he will get out of it.

My sincere best wishes to you graduates for much success in the future.

Mr. Harold Garrett, Vice Principal

DEDICATION

A yearbook dedication is our class's way of giving thanks to someone we feel has shared and helped us in our experiences of the past four years—someone who has encouraged and worked for the benefit of the class. Miss LeBauer, our class advisor, is most deserving of this recognition. She has seen us through class meetings, dances, proms, a Junior Variety Show and sleep-outs. She has been a part of our growth both individual and as a class. Her dedication and sincerity has made a lasting impression. It is therefore with great pleasure that we dedicate the 1969 Hourglass to Miss Alice LeBauer.

VALEDICTORY

Does it seem society has become too complex? Men have just returned from the moon and shortly men will land there. Nothing seems to take place today without the aid of computers. We are constantly monitored by satellites whirling about us. Some people feel that even man is being turned into a machine by artificial organs. Society is complex, but look into the past.

It seems to us, today, that the horse and buggy days of the eighteen hundreds were simple and life was worth living. To Henry Thoreau the horse and buggy days were complex. He felt the railroad was an iron monster that was consuming natural beauty. Thoreau could not keep peace with his society so he dropped out for two years to live along the banks of Walden Pond.

At the turn of the century scientists believed man had reached his peak of scientific knowledge. They thought that all physical laws had been explained. Physicists' only job would be to make accurate measurements of physical phenomena. In the past twenty years there has been more scientific research and discovery than in all the past years of man's existence. Rapid development and complications have brought us to today's society.

Let's not be like Thoreau and see a complex society as frightening. Society is intricate but it is exciting. Man's wish has always been to touch the moon. The lunar landing will satisfy man's longest ambition by gaining what was thought to be impossible. Man will be unleashing a new frontier.

Computers are every mathematician's dream come true. A mathematician will say anyone can do the dog work and so the computer does the dog work. Has life become any less precious now that artificial devices help man function? No! New organs have given people a zest for life. Once bedridden patients are now able to enjoy a walk down a garden path. These wonderful developments have come because of education.

Our years at Wilmington High are like a diving board from which we can spring into society. The graduates of today will infiltrate the business world, inhabit the dorms of colleges and join in the service of our country. Our education will be a growing process to meet the need of a complicated world.

Let's realize today's youth are not shaken by a complex world. When the people of this graduating class were in the fourth grade, putting a man on the moon was still a topic for science fiction writers. The rapid increase in computer systems has developed during our years in school. The men and women of this class are excited to venture into the world. The youth of today are eager to learn, to grasp and to control their complex, beautiful world.

SALUTATORY

1969 will no doubt be remembered as the year social ferment in education became universal; as the year of building occupation and often violent retaliation; as the year of Brandeis and Harvard and Cornell and People's Park at Berkeley. And it will be remembered as the year that college unrest began to filter down to the high school level, so that the very structural premises of American education as it exists began to be universally questioned.

Some students possess an intense and a sincere feeling of revulsion toward the unsavory abstractions which relate to the fact of American life. They seize on the specific manifestations, the symptoms of these abstractions and they regard those symptoms as their immediate nemeses, to be eradicated at all costs. To some, the action of eradication is essentially reformist; to others, it is one first step toward the effect of an upheaval in education and society. But whatever the end, it is the means that have been most publicized, most discussed, most deplored by non-students for they are the historically familiar tools of violence and disruption.

Whether or not this disruption is morally justifiable or even effective of its ends is immaterial here. It is exclusively the question of the validity of student grievances and the relation of those grievances to education itself that I consider. Students have become disenchanted with a society they find oppressive and immersed in fraudulence; they see education as reflective of that society, and so they turn on the educational system as a collaborator with a corrupt and digarchic bureaucracy. Some of their grievances relate to the sociopolitical context of educational evil: the ROTC question; expansion at Harvard and Columbia; war research. But increasingly, especially as high schools become centers of dissension and turbulence the emphasis has somewhat shifted to the consideration of evils organic in modern American education itself. It is these evils, and the question of whether or not they exist as such, that I wish to consider.

The primary fault of education, as the disenchanted students claim, is that it consists almost wholly of systematic indoctrination. An orthodoxy reflective of the false values of society is instilled, insidiously and often subliminally, into grammar school, high school and even college students. Chief among the propounded values is that of the achievement ethic. Educators have long maintained an overblown consciousness of tangible achievement, and have regarded numerical competition, obvious academic superiority and the acquisition of educational prestige as compulsions, if not end-alls. Moreover, students have been indoctrinated into acceptance of the rightness and the unimpeachable normalcy of this situation. They have been systematically prepared for later participation in a society frantically oriented toward get-aheadism and materiality; they have been educated so that they may ultimately assume a secure position in the American social hierarchy. To get a good job, get a good education, runs the ad, thereby epitomizing the lamentable distortion of educational objectives. The simplistic statement "we learn to earn" is unfortunately too accurate.

The achievement consciousness coincides neatly with another major grievance of students in secondary schools and colleges. This latter involves the estrangement of modern education from its enlightened education induces pleasure, for it involves the awakening and the expansion of thought processes, the stimulation of opinion, the challenge of conceptual and manipulative thought. But education as it chiefly exists is routine, dogmatic, stifling, antithetical to the encouragement of free thinking, and effective of a perpetuation of false values. No wonder, then, that students consider it inconceivable that they should ever derive pleasure from learning through such a system. Primary and secondary education has its basis in rote learning, conventional structures, authoritarian multi-rules. There is allowed no room for change or serious question of a system which, though obsolete, perpetuates itself. Before we consider the relation of education to the evils, perhaps organic in society, we must realize that it is the very structure and character of the educational system that allows for such a relation.

If education's supposed evils do indeed exist, as I here submit, then we must hope that they are eradicable. I for one consider that there exists a need for thorough upheaval in the educational system. Priorities must be realigned so that the objectives of learning become, not preparation for the eventual Rat Race, but personal gratification, development, maturity, stimulation and pleasure. Experimentation in educational methods should be a commonplace. Dogmas should be discarded; the expression of ideas, the formulation of personal ideologies, should be encouraged. Variances among individuals should be considered in judging academic progress. Contemporary problems which touch on students lives should be a free and vital part of curricula. Intellectual confrontation, reassessment of the teacher-students roles, rejection of indoctrination methods, should all become the province of educational innovators who should radically alter the character of American learning. In San Francisco, in Philadelphia, in Newton, and in other cities and towns across America, such progressive education, involving such ideals and alterations, has been attempted with generally remarkable success ."Progressive" students enjoy their schools, and emerge from them thoughtful individuals, not efficiently programmed automatons. Though I do not advocate social revolution, as do some of my contemporaries, I do feel that educational revolution is necessary. Stopgap reforms are not enough. Only when the schools are everywhere and fundamentally altered will education become relevant, pleasurable, and true to its professed ideals.

The unrest becoming widespread among high school and college students expresses a felt disenchantment with abstracted wrongs, of which our school systems are symptomatic. Students are now realizing, however, that the specific relation between educational policy and society's ills derives from the very nature of the structure of the educational systems—which, in turn, derives probably from the nature of society. Thus a prelude to the obliteration of sociopolitico immorality must be to total upheaval in education—so that earning is elevated from an experience in enforced orthodoxy to an awakening and a radical enlightenment.

ESSAY

Most of us have been taught that peace is an interval between wars; a short time when people try to live in unity with each other. Our impressions of what peace is are as varied as the ways we search for it. Some of us may find it in a glass of alcohol or a joint of marijuana. Others may find it in their secure suburban homes. What would your reaction be to finding peace in Christ? For the most part, this solution would be unfavorable. I doubt it would be unfavorable because it's a solution that has already been tried. We've looked everywhere else for peace and can't seem to find it.

There is no one word that can define peace adequately. It is radiated by a radical they called Christ. I'm not talking about the Christianity that is looked upon as hypocritical or sometimes indifferent—the Christianity that the world often sees. The Christianity I mean is one where a person can find total or perfect peace and one that can create a sureness of the future. Peace that comes from a very basic relationship with someone else where the important thing exchanged is love, for one can't exist without the other.

Each of us is a complicated being with too much fear to enter openly into any situation. And yet we turn around and wonder why the world is in such turmoil. Our hope is that the future will hold everything, and therefore the present is put aside. There is really no reason to wonder why kids are on drugs or why the suicide rate continually increases. These people are asking, "What's there to life?" These people are searching for some kind of peace but not finding it.

Is there an answer? Could it come from a person who never lived in this age? No, not as long as we stay self-centered. Not as long as we care more about ourselves than anyone or anything else. Not as long as we continue to destroy peace by waging wars. To reach out and commit ourselves to something definite may be giving up a lot. And for what? A person who is intangible and unreal? We want material peace which we're never going to have. Our society is running a race. A race where we never slow down long enough to see where we're going. Our aim has to be to create not manufacture peace.

High school today is four fast, interesting years. Part of us is being moulded—part of our future is being formed. Will peace effect that future? What will we use as a basis then? Other ways have been tried and have failed. Our search continues. If you're searching everywhere else, then you may have nothing to lose. Real faith in Christ will only cause you to lose the need to search further and cause you to gain peace.

Today, the question in your minds is what will we do with our futures? A better question is what will we do with the present? Peace is a now thing. It cannot be put off. The world doesn't need a solution for tomorrow, it desperately needs one today. And that solution won't come from the person beside you. Each of us has to find his own peace that will work for the present. If that happens, the future will work itself out.

Beth Emery

CLASS PROPHECY

Welcome to Laugh-In's news of the future. The year is 1979 and the scene is the Wilmington High School cafeteria where the class of '69 is forced to hold its reunion because the officers were never quite able to collect all the dues. The class of '69, although it perhaps has not been the most successful, has proven itself the most diversified. They have branched themselves out into many fields: entertainment, athletic, educational, medical and political.

Let's first focus our attention on Judy Connors, who is standing in the far end of the room, skis in one hand and a first aid kit in the other. As you have probably already guessed, Judy is involved in sports. She now has her own ski school where she teaches her new way to go down the slopes, by chair lift. Talking with Judy are Pam Smith and Anne Barry who are presently working for Judy as her ski patrol rescuing her students. Pam, by the way, has just returned from a two year hitch in the Peace Corps. (She was stationed in the wilds of Tewksbury.)

I see many here tonight who have entered the entertainment field. In fact, Beth Emery was Laugh-In's very own "Discovery of the Week" last week. She did her snail immitation for us. Declan Berkley and Nancy Forrest are also here. They play opposite each other once again, but this time on Broadway, he as an usher and she as an usherette. Alison Cox and Lucy Gionfrido, who made their television debut as extras on the Phyllis Diller Show, now appear regularly as part of the audience on the Ed Sullivan Show. Pat Cote has become a dancer and is at this time a member of the Reading Ballet Company. The circus has claimed some of the members of the class. Mary Hurley has fulfilled her ambitions and is now a fat lady in the circus. Ray DeCecca, who was one of the graceful ballerinos in the Junior Variety Show, now does his act atop a galloping elephant.

You are now viewing Linda Lurvey who is in the process of jogging around the cafeteria. Linda, who has always excelled in physical education, is presently an assistant to Miss McCarthy. Jane Emery, who has entered the teaching profession, is leading her students in a revolt against the administration. She feels strongly that kindergarten students should have a voice in school policies. Chris Simard is currently a French teacher using the Baran method. She opens all the windows in the middle of winter and then tries to demoralize her students by wearing a sleeveless dress and complaining of the heat.

Bob Stewart holds a coaching position at Wilmington where he is the coach of the bench warmers of the Wilmington Hockey Team. Speaking of teachers it has just been announced that Mr. Kelley, who once used Paul Kritter to measure the blackboard space, has succeeded in getting the United States to accept a Kritter as a standard of measurement.

There's Ed Thomas. Ed had just about finished the house of his dreams when he had a little set back. It seems that it was a victim of the mud slides in California. His house, which was once on the top of a hill, is now at the bottom of the ocean. Ed is undaunted, however, for he has given up his motorcycle for scuba diving gear. Standing next to Ed you can see Gerry Land on your TV screen. Gerry is a dentist with Gretchen Platt as his assistant. They are at the present time working at a teacher's clinic where their specialty is pulling teeth.

Many here tonight are involved in the world of politics and local government. Paul Winchell and Morris Anderson have done a complete "about face" and are now leaders in the SDS movement. Tony Beatrice, Barbara Maloney, Jimmy Swisher, and Lorraine Boudreau, who were members of the student school committee, are at this time members of the actual Wilmington School Committee and have issued a series of decrees. First of all, Jimmy Swisher has been made honorary chaperone for the Senior New York trip because of his excellent behavior on the class of '69's trip. Secondly, there will be no more assemblies practicing for assemblies unless of course there is practice for the practice assemblies.

There are many more here tonight and much more to say but time limits us, so that's all for the news tonight, folks.

Norma McPhee

CLASS WILL

As the graduating class of 1969 makes its way out of Wilmington High School, they pass many rooms in which many memories were made. As we walk through for the last time, we might start at the end of the wing where Mr. Dicey's drafting classes were held. For those classes, Manuel Griffin leaves his pencil to the top freshman draftsman, hoping that it brings him the great achievements as it brought Manuel. Dave Polsey leaves to Al Valenti and Paul Winchell all the MacDonald frappes that he ate. To Steve Catalano, Jack leaves a set of engineering notes.

On the other side of the hall is the music room, where Vita Marie Sinopoli leaves a whole rack of choir robes to Debbie Dayton, and Dave Polsey leaves behind all of the football music.

On our way out, we pass several "Girls" and "Boys" rooms billowing with black curls of smoke. In the girls' room by 215, Janice McInnis leaves a carton of cigarettes to Patty Graves who is also left in charge of putting out all of the fires by Lois DelNinno, and from the boys' room, Tony Beatrice, not to be outdone, leaves 4,000 pounds of cigarette butts in the ventilation system. The home-ec rooms have had their share of billowing smoke, and Gail Smith leaves the "wonderfulness" of Mrs. Kanchuga's classes to all senior home-ec students.

We go by the art room next, where oil paint is profusely running from under the door. This is the room where Debbie Shine leaves her imagination to Eddie Alexander and the room itself to the new freshmen. Susan Winters leaves an I.O.U. of $2.00 to the art club c/o Miss Kulisich.

At the end of the first floor wing we find a guidance office, or so it is named. This is the one where Karen Mirowski leaves her seat to anyone who can skip as many classes as she did.

We see, straight ahead now, the foyer and entrance to the auditorium. Left behind is the Junior Variety Show, where the fond memories of Ray DiCecca, Ed Gillis, and Bill Montouri in the fairy dance are left in our minds. Also, in memory of the Senior Class Play, Debbie Russell leaves the rehearsals to anyone willing to put up with the director's frustrations. Vita Marie Sinopoli leaves the aggravation of building the sets for the next play to anyone; Don Garland leaves a bottle of Excedrin to the same person. The rehearsals are left by Nancy Forrest to any else.

We round the corner and pass the language labs where Dave Roberts leaves all the clocks behind. We pass by many more rooms and eventually come to the office. This is where Charley Southmayd would like to leave an alarm clock for students who are constantly late. On the other side of the coin, Susan Winters leaves her sisters, Trishe and Paula, to keep up the family tradition of tardiness.

On the way out, we must pass through the cafeteria; the scene of many a mob and several near food poisonings. Dave Olson leaves the lunches for the birds, and Janice McInnis leaves a pair of non-slip shoes for running to lunch. Also is left much gossip over the lunch tables. But we must move on.

We pass the gym, where we might catch the moans and grunts of kids pretending to be animals as they crawl acros sthe floor. Allen Williams leaves one mangled, extra large jump rope for an unfortunate gymnast along with a half can of Right Guard to the deprived class of '71. Gail Smith gladly leaves all the aches and pains of gym class to Joan and Jeanette Arsenault. Debbie leaves her gym class and many excuses for getting out, and Lorraine Boudreau leaves her old worn out gym suit to a certain freshman. But the gym has been the birthplace of some of the finest teams in the Merrimac Valley. We remember our great football team—and, for bruised players, Ray Dicecca leaves his football helmet to be converted into a whirlpool bath, and Buddy Chamberlain leaves a rubber duck for Jimmy Irwin to play with in the whirlpool. Eddie Gillis leaves his football cleats to his brother Dick. David O'Connell leaves his fabulous football and hockey talent to Mike Esposito. Billy Montouri leaves a flashing red light to the Burlington goalie, and Bob Stewart and Andy Sullivan leave their seats on the hockey bench to those who think they can fill them. From the basketball team, Allen Williams leaves one pair of knee pads in fair condition to Alan Heim, and also to Alan, Gary Hebsch leaves his worn out basketball socks. If the socks are washed, they will carry him through the entire season without any "offensive" complaints. For our cheerleaders, Elaine Leduc leaves the football cheerleading squad to next year's captain; Bonny Bishop leaves her cheerleading captain's uniform to a deserving senior and the cheerleading squad to Miss Bochino. Yes, we all remember our great rallies and games, and the good times we had.

We remember the math department, our science department, and the English and history departments. Don Garland leaves the fifth seat, last row to the next kid who gets Mr. Jones for math three years straight. Pam Hadfield leaves her unused advanced math book to Mr. Lynch to give to someone who plans to use it; Jack Lee leaves one unused geometry book to anyone. From our framed science department many students leave .. . . Lorraine Boudreau leaves her cruddy biology book to anyone who can find a use for it. Sylvina Kemp leaves her vitamins to Mr. Krey. Gary Hebsch leaves his fantastic brain to Dr. Farello and the biology lab so they can figure out how he managed to get out of W.H.S. To Miss Lehan, Dave Olson leaves five pre-med. students that could possibly pass her course in Biology II. Ray DiCecca and Dave Esielionis leave to Dr. Farello one box of two-hole rubber stoppers, and all of her physics classes leave a protractor.

We also remember our fine English department. To Mrs. Aldrich, Dave Polsey leaves all the vocabulary words that he forgot. To Mrs. Cronin, Debbie Shine leaves a can of oil for her hair in room 219. Charles Southmayd leaves a whip to Mrs. Dolkart to help her control her classes.

Also, we have our history department, famed for its P.O.D. teachers and class advisors. We all leave much thanks to Miss LeBauer for helping us all out. Debbie Russell leaves Mr. Cripps her brother Rick. Mr. Roche is left a bottle of pep pills by Dave Olson, which reminds us of the New York trip. Renee LaVallee leaves next year's trip for the kids to have fun on. Don Garland leaves an empty glass in room 394 of the Taft Hotel.

The class of '69 also leaves many good friends inside the walls of W.H.S. Dave Palsey leaves to Harry Latter all of the snow he didn't use. Debbie Shine leaves a large bottle of tranquilizers to Mr. Jones, who taught her to drive. Tony Beatrice leaves four tons of Head and Shoulders to Mr. Cripps; a fine tooth comb for Mr. McMahon to comb the hair which Dave Esielionis leaves him; and a shot gun, some tear gas, and a bull whip for Mr. Garrett. Gretchen Platt leaves her foot which is always in her mouth to Mr. Cripps, and a king size bottle of Johnson's Baby Powder to those in need. Jimmy Swisher leaves one cup of "Hot Mustard" to Mary Alice and a poor excuse to Jane, the hope that her senior year was as good as his was. To Gary Nelson, one banana royal, compliments of the house. Renee LaVallee leaves Carl Cotter for no one. Pam Hadfield leaves the gum she has chewed to Mr. Kelly (may he enjoy it without interruption). Gary Nelson leaves bunches of sunshine to Dotti Castaldo and Susan Brown, to be used without suntan lotion, sunglasses, or horoscope books. Gerry Land leaves all his questions to another inquisitive person for teachers like Mr. Kelley. Lorraine Boudreau leaves all the grunties to Sonja and Syd. Alison Cox leaves her Paris Originals shoes to Mr. Kelley for any track runner who likes to keep up with the styles, and Judy Connors leaves her license to the Registry of Motor Vehicles before she damages anything else.

But, altogether, the Class of '69 leaves Wilmington High School for the last time, with much forgotten, but much remembered. We hope that other classes will have as good a time being ourselves as we did.

CLASS HISTORY

As June approaches this yeor, many seniars will breathe o sigh of relief and say to themselves, "It's finally over." The majority will ga an their awn seporote woys—be it callege ar to seek fartune in voriaus occupotions. Everyane, hawever, who has been o member af the closs af '69, will remember it in loter years os ane of the mast, if not the mast spirited ond accamplished class in many a year. The memaries af donces, shaws, and special friends, alang with o lat af hord wark, will never leave us. I'm sure everyone has heard it soid that high schaol is suppased to be the most enjayable years af o person's life. With o closs such as we had, haw can this saying be false? Althaugh we naw seek bigger things, a fand memary of our schaol and our class will be farever transfixed within us.

As freshmen, we entered Wilmington High as timid underclassmen. The schaol's surroundings ond atmosphere were like o new warld to mony af us. A warld af many classrooms and lang carridars, bounded by brick wolls an all sides. As the weeks pragressed, the freshmen fell into ploce and become occustomed ta on occasianal superiar remark by the upper classes. We oll dreamed af the doy when the situation wauld be reversed. The mojar octivity of the yeor was the electian af closs afficers. The top brass were Ed Gillis, President; Jerry Land, Vice President; Charley Sauthmayd, Secretary; and Declan Berkley, Treasurer.

We returned the fallawing September ance ogoin ta Wilmingtan High. We were a little more experienced and aur rule over the Freshmen provided revived confidence. Our closs odvisar far the Saphamare yeor, was Miss Alice LeBauer. Her capabilty and sincere understanding won her the some position in the Junior and Senior years. Gary Warford wos the only new afficer elected. He served os Treosurer. The volue af class porticipation revealed itself os plans far the Saphamare Dance were made. The dance was entitled, "Ho Ho a Go Ga," ond was held December 17, 1966. A fun time was had by all. Mony students busied themselves in schaol activities requiring knawledge that wauld saan mauld them inta leoders.

The Junior year marked the beginning of the develapment af the class of '69. An oworeness of whot wos reolly hoppening in our school taok hald of us all. The many activities held pravided, perhaps, the best year in high schaal for us. Class electians gave Ed Gillis the Presidency far the third straight yeor. Equally as successful was Jerry Lond in his bid far the Vice Presidency. Bab Stewort was aur new Secretary ond Charley Sauthmayd maved from Secretary ta Treasurer. Our class rings were distributed and worn with ride. The Junior Prom, "One Very Speciol Mament," was held at the Montvole Plozo on April 5, 1968. A few energetic members held o beoch party the following doy.

For one brief week, the closs wos given its freedom. Dress-Up doy occupied Tuesdoy, Moy 7. Mony of the members took port. Suits ond ties were in obundonce. Tuesdoy night, the scene wos the North Intermediate School. Approximotely 300 persons ottended the Junior Bonquet. The school committee, the odministrotion, teochers ond porents were present. The highlight of the evening wos the presentotion of ocodemic owords. Hippe-Doy followed on Wednesdoy with costumes ronging from on Indion Guru to o Hord Rock Guitorist. Bell bottoms ond beods were prevolent. Thursdoy wos Sounds of Silence Doy. No one wos supposed to speok. The costume for the doy wos o blue shirt ond a white orm bond. The week wos highlighted by Crazy Doy. A parade wos initioted by the Juniors. The raute was Weinberg's ta the High School, vio Church Street.

The class presented its Juniar Voriety Shaw ot the Herbert C. Barraws Auditorium on the nights of May 10 and 11. Previewed were camedy acts of all types, ballerino dances, TV shaws, and a real live rack band. The shaw, under the directian af Mr. Rabert Cripps, was a smosh and a hoppy ending ta a fun-filled Juniar yeor.

Thus, we have arrived in September os Seniors. We were naw the undisputed heraes. Leaders af the schaal. We had attoined the dream we had saught far os Freshmen. Ed Gillis, ance again, was elected President. Poul Kritter succeeded Jerry Land in the Vice President's pasition, Jimmy Swisher became aur new Secretary ond Chorley Sauthmayd remained Treosurer. Our class advisar, os she had been for faur yeors, was none ather thon Miss LeBauer. The Seniar Closs held twa dances this year. The first wos o Hallaween Donce an October 26. The donce wos indeed profitable adding ane hundred nine dallars to the class treosury. Other money wos raised by a canteen put an at hame bosketboll games.

Pride in the class flaurished especially during the Seniar yeor. Much emphosis wos placed on sparts and extra-curricular activities. Cangratulotians were indeed in arder far the faatball team, finishing os ca-champions af the canference. This teom wos exemplary af the autstonding success enjoyed by Wilmingtan High in foatboll far mony years. Speciol credit should be given ta our very capable ond determined caach, Mr. Bellissima, wha hos indeed made much af it passible.

Success was enjayed alsa by our fine Hackey Team which ended up chompians af the Merrimoc Volley Canference, nat ta underestimote the Bosketboll and Trock Teoms which both enjoyed very respectoble seosans.

Mony Seniars' theatrical tolents were shown aff os the closs presented its Senior Play under the very copoble directian af Mr. Lewis Gordner. It was entitled, "An Italion Strow Hot," o French camedy superiarly octed by the cost. Our closs dance was held in mid February and it featured the heavy hard rock and blues saund af "Wolk an Woter." All in ottendance were introduced ta same of the greatest musicol tolent ever ta step faot on the gym flaor af Wilmingtan High. May 16 morks the sign-aut far mony Seniars wha hald jabs; the remainder will exist until June.

The Senior Pram, held an Moy 23, had ta be the sacial event of the yeor. Its setting, that af Crone's Costle in Ipswich, cauld nat be tapped. The name, "A Moment in Moy," wos very oppropriote. Unlike oll formols, it will surely bring bock fond remembronces in oll the yeors to come.

The Senior bonquet wos held on June 12. Mony were in ottendonce ta mork the closing of four unforgettoble yeors. June 15, 1969, brought to o close the Closs of '69. The Voledictory wos given by Edword Thomos. The presentotion of diplomo sfollowed os friends gothered to soy goodbye to eoch other ond to o school which hod been their home for four importont ond inspiring yeors.

Moy the closs of 1969 olwoys be remembered for its ochievements, chorocter, ond spirt os we, the Seniors, bid Good-bye to Wilmington High School.
